

Learning Outcome	Criterion	30 - 39	40 - 49	50 - 59	60 - 69	70 - 100
Analyse methods and models of group working and the support offered by various tools	Analyse the key properties of group projects	Scant or poor discussion on identified benefits or disadvantages of group working	Identification of some benefits and disadvantages of group working	Analysis of tradeoffs and compromises in group working	Description of a group process which takes account of the real properties of group working	Thoughtful analysis of group processes, including critique of the chosen method
	Examine the support offered by a particular category of tool	Partial but almost complete identification of key properties of the tool type chosen	Identification of the key properties of the tool type chosen	Description of the processes involved with using the tool in practice	Critique of a particular example	Examination of more than one example, with well-justified commentary of potential future developments